"Art is not what you see, but what you make others see." – Edgar Degas

FOUNDER & CURATOR

The idea for the Phuket Art Fair 2026 was initiated by Mr. Jean-Philippe Zerafa. A French national who holds a BBA in Marketing and Finance. For 20 years, he held various management positions in international communications consulting & advertising agencies in Paris, Geneva, and New York. His expertise lies in developing brand strategies and producing international advertising campaigns for luxury brands in the beauty, watchmaking, jewelry, wine & spirits sectors. He has collaborated with renowned videographers and photographers for premium & luxury brands such as Alexander McQueen, Chopard, Swarovski, Piaget, Dom Pérignon and others. Passionate about contemporary art and a Art Collector of artworks and photographs himself, he wanted to create a new annual event combining Art and Luxury. Thailand, and Phuket in particular, are offering high-end hospitality infrastructures, a community of national and expert HNWI and a unique setting for hosting an international event combining Art & Luxury. THE RISE OF THAI ART:

Christie's hard work in promoting local artists on the global stage is paying dividend

"We have seen a growing appreciation of art. While the proportion of sales fluctuates between luxury goods and artwork each year, Christie's revenue from art sales has increased. Luxury goods account for a large portion of our revenue, ranging from 50%-70%, while art sales contribute 30%-50%, which is a significant increase from the past. We are pleased to see this progress,"

THE AUDIENCE

While the Art Basel and UBS Survey of Global Collecting 2024 does not provide country-specific data for Thailand, it offers valuable insights into the behaviors and demographics of high-net-worth individuals (HNWIs) in the Asian art market, which can shed light on the art collector audience in Thailand.

Demographics and Wealth Distribution

The 2024 survey included over 3,660 HNWIs from 14 major markets, including several in Asia such as Hong Kong, Mainland China, Singapore, Indonesia, Taiwan, and Japan. Participants were required to have a net worth exceeding $1 million, excluding real estate and private business assets. In the Asian markets surveyed, there was a higher proportion of younger collectors, with 62% being Millennials (ages 28–43) and Gen Z (ages 20–27), compared to 55% in European markets and 52% in the Americas. The average age of respondents across all markets was 45, with Hong Kong reporting a younger average age of 38, reflecting the youthful demographic of collectors in the region.

Collecting Behavior and Preferences

Collectors in the Asian markets demonstrated a strong inclination toward supporting emerging artists, allocating 52% of their art expenditure to new and emerging talents in 2023 and the first half of 2024. This marks an increase from 44% in the previous survey, indicating a growing interest in discovering new voices in the art world. In terms of medium, paintings remained the most popular, constituting 36% of collections across all generations and regions. Traditional art forms such as sculptures and works on paper were also prevalent, making up 62% of the works owned.

Purchasing Channels and Motivations

Asian collectors exhibited a strong preference for purchasing art through dealers, with 95% engaging with this channel. Additionally, there was a notable increase in buying from new galleries, with 88% of collectors purchasing from at least one new dealer over the last year. Collectors also embraced digital platforms, with 72% buying directly from dealer websites and 43% through social media. The primary motivation for collecting art among HNWIs was self-identity and personal enjoyment, cited by 37% of respondents. Financial investment was the second most common motivation at 28%, followed by social and networking reasons.

IMPLICATIONS FOR EXHIBITORS IN THAILAND:

While specific data for Thailand is not provided, the trends observed in neighboring Asian markets suggest that Thai art collectors are likely to be younger, tech-savvy individuals with a strong interest in emerging artists and a preference for traditional art forms like paintings and sculptures. They are also inclined to purchase art through dealers and online platforms, motivated primarily by personal enjoyment and self-expression. In order to engage with the local collector base, strategies should emphasize digital engagement, showcasing emerging talent, and offering traditional art forms that resonate with collectors’ preferences.

IMPORT TAXES FOR CONTEMPORARY ART IN THAILAND

Importing contemporary paintings into Thailand involves specific tax considerations. Here’s an overview based on the latest available information:

Import Taxes for Contemporary Paintings & Sculptures in Thailand

Customs Duty:

Original works of art, such as contemporary paintings, are generally exempt from customs duties when imported into Thailand.

Value Added Tax (VAT):

A 7% VAT is applied to the total value of the artwork, which includes the cost, insurance, and freight (CIF).

For an artwork valued at $10,000 with $500 in insurance and $1,000 in shipping:

CIF Value: $10,000 (cost) + $500 (insurance) + $1,000 (freight) = $11,500
Customs Duty: 0% of $11,500 = $0
VAT: 7% of $11,500 = $805
Total Import Tax: $0 (duty) + $805 (VAT) = $805

Important Considerations:

- Accurate Classification: Ensure the artwork is correctly classified under the appropriate Harmonized System (HS) code to benefit from duty exemptions.
- Documentation: Provide detailed invoices and certificates of authenticity to facilitate customs clearance.
- Temporary Imports: If the artwork is for exhibition purposes, temporary import procedures may apply, potentially altering tax obligations.

It’s advisable to consult with Thai customs authorities or a professional customs broker to ensure compliance with all regulations and to obtain the most current information regarding import taxes for artworks.
